The Latin-American Convention on the Rights of Youngsters (Costa Rica)

05/06/2008

IJJO / International Juvenile Justice Observatory

International - On May 23rd 2008, the ceremony to enact the Latin-American Convention on the Rights of Youngsters took place in the city of San José (Costa Rica). The International Juvenile Justice Observatory (IJJO) was present during this event which is of great importance to Latin-American youth.

In October 2005, the plenipotentiary delegates of the Member States of the Latin-American Youth Organisation gathered at the Spanish city of Badajoz to adopt and sign the Latin-American Convention on the Rights of Youngsters.

The IJJO wishes to share this Convention with its users and collaborators, because it is a unique document in the world which recognises youngsters as people with full rights and strategic actors for the development.

IJJO INTERVIEWS

IJJO Interview - Mr. Jochen Goerdeler. Director. German association for Juvenile Justice.Germany

IJJO / International Juvenile Justice Observatory

National, Germany - Jochen Goerdeler, Director of the 'German Association for Juvenile Justice and Judicial assistance for Minors' from Germany, analyses the juvenile justice system in this country. Mr. Goerdeler explains that the development of a more tolerant social environment towards youngsters in trouble and of a general political environment which is more concentrated on social integration instead of punishment and mere security, are some of the essential improvements for the development of a future for juvenile justice in Germany.

RESEARCH AND THESIS

Rights-based Restorative Practice: Evaluation Toolkit

Shannon Moore Ph.D.

Canada - This publication articulates the intersection between children's rights and restorative justice principles both in theory and application by introducing the Rights Based Restorative Practice Evaluation ToolKit. The legal framework underpinning Rights Based Restorative Justice (RBRJ) was first developed and presented by the authors within the context of Canadian social policy and youth justice practices. Conceptualized through the lenses of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and international standards relevant to restorative justice, the authors argue that RBRJ contributes to ethical practice with young people in conflict with the law, within schools, and the broader community within many states.

Shannon Moore Ph.D. Assistant Professor Brock University. Child and Youth Studies Department.

The IJJO offers you the possibility to publish your thesis and research work about juvenile justice.
