The Fifth IJJO International Conference, Criminality or Social Exclusion? Justice for Children in a Divided World, aims to address the impact of the global crises on the administration of justice for children and young people. In the last years, as a result of social and economic polarisation and global crises, growing numbers of children, young people and families are finding themselves at the margins of society where social exclusion and involvement in criminality might constitute a higher risk.

COLLABORATION FORUM

The youth suicide in the world: beyond international standards

According to the Prison Reform Trust (UK), the probability that minors in detention commit suicide is eighteen times higher than people who live in the community. In fact young people deprived of freedom are more likely to develop mental health issues than adults.

What kind of policies and measures raising awareness must be implemented to achieve greater empathy of the public about the risk factors of suicide among young people in the world?
